

MEETING PREVIEW

Grins Night of Champions

Race 1 @ 5.14pm #7 Irish Whispers

His first win back was full of merit and he won't have to do much more to feature. On exposed form he'd have to be a strong chance.

Race 2 @ 5.45pm #9 Keep It Klassy

I'd expect her to have derived plenty of benefit from last week's race. There are three or four handy trotters in here, but you can't count her out. Cover in trifecta/first four combinations.

Race 3 @ 6.20pm #4 Beta Prepare, #10 Shez The One & #12 Cracker Rock

We start with Beta Prepare who has finally managed to pull a good draw. He's racing well but just not quite getting there. Having said that, I'm sure he'll go another honest race.

Our second runner is Shez The One. She's progressed nicely since breaking maidens and there's no reason she can't find her way into the top four.

Cracker Rock made up plenty of ground last week. It'll be hard again from the unruly, but look for him to be finishing the race off at tidy odds.

Race 4 @ 6.48pm #12 Carolina Moon

She's struggled since coming out of maiden company and it looks a tough ask tomorrow. Hopefully she can find all the shortcuts.

Race 8 @ 8.44pm #2 Bad Medicine, #6 New York Minute & #9 Jolimont

Bad Medicine didn't really get into it on day 2 at Palmy. He has an advantage off the front, and with a clean getaway can sneak a place.

New York Minute is racing below his best and on paper it looks a step up in grade.

Having his first standing start is Jolimont. His work since putting together three wins has been top notch. He looks one of the key runners.

Race 9 @ 9.10pm #1 Kango

Well it's not often the stars align but they have this time - a perfect preparation, with a perfect draw. It's a top class field but I'm sure he'll run a competitive race.

Best of luck
to all connections